Dear Hiring Manager,

I am an educator and writer specializing in English and communication, with 5+ years of experience working with children driven by a passion for building a better future for our youths. I was thrilled to hear about this opportunity, since it is an ideal fit for my skills, and I am an ideal candidate for a role in your company.

After spending one year working with children within a non-profit organization in the states, I accompanied the same organization overseas to the Dominican Republic and Haiti to deliver fresh water and teach English at the few schools that were available to us there. I have two years experience teaching English within a classroom setting, with a teaching certificate, training in special needs, dyslexia and first aid training. When I was not teaching, I have gained experience researching, revising, editing and proofing articles for digital content, paper content, and even written and published a children's book. I would love to be considered for a position within the company.

I would be honored to receive the opportunity to speak with you about my ideas and qualifications. I hope we are able to speak in the near future.

Best regards,

Kori Burke
